Mrs. Davidson's Class

We are in holiday mode now. Thank you to everyone who came to our Thanksgiving dinner. We had a fun Thanksgiving, and now we are gearing up for Christmas. We have spent a lot of time this week practicing for our Christmas program. Our first performance is during Live Nativity this Saturday night at 5:15. Please have your children to the church by 4:45 so they can get in costume and be ready to go on stage. Our next performance will be next Saturday morning (Dec. 14), and students will need to be at the church by 10:30. Please check the Bloomz app for more information about costumes, or let me know if you have any questions.

Our new Reading unit this month is Walking With God. First grade is reading Little Maid, a Bible story about the servant girl who directed Naaman to God's prophet for healing of his leprosy. Third and fourth grades are reading Out of the Blue, about pilot Nathan McMillen and his adventures, beginning with an engine stall over the mountains of Montana. Fifth and sixth grades are reading the book of Jonah from the Bible, about God's hesitant prophet to Ninevah. And eighth grade is reading Shepherd Warrior, about young David before he became king of Israel.

In Social Studies, the lower grades are taking a break from their usual curriculum to study Christmas celebrations around the world. The upper grades are continuing their study of Colonial America. In PE we have started our volleyball unit, and practiced our forearm passes.

See you Saturday night! Don't forget!

Teacher Martha's Class

The 1st week of December has brought on Christmas full blast! We have been reading the story of Jesus' birth and how he was the promise that God talked about in the Garden of Eden. It was a sad day when evil entered the garden, but having Jesus as our hope is a wonderful ending to the story. Our theme book is about a horse who lost his way in a snowstorm. A older gentleman found hope in the horse and taking care of her and then awoke to a new foal on Christmas morning. We have hope in Jesus and I pray that the kiddos and their family will always see that hope.

We have done a lot of work on our Christmas surprises. The kids have done a lot of work on them and I really hope you like them! We have made a couple of ornaments and will be decorating our classroom next week.

We have looked at how animals prepare and make it through the winter. God really thought of everything when he created everything. We have worked on prepositions. The kids did really well.

Don't forget the nativity this weekend. Soup is on for dinner and then get a glimpse of Mary and Joseph's journey that night many years ago.

Teacher Holly's Class

This week we are starting phase one of our Christmas surprise. The children will be counting, making choices, mixing and measuring.

We've brought out various nativity sets so the children can act out the story of Jesus's birth.

I've seen awesome progress with my kiddos. Some are starting to write there name, others are finding the letters of their name. Some are drawing with a purpose. Love to hear about their pictures. I now know what a brain and alien looks like.

We've been discussing shapes. This week's focus has been on triangles.

I'm looking forward to bringing a few of my animals to the live nativity this Friday and Saturday nights. Hope you'll come stroll through Bethlehem and get a taste of what it was like when Jesus was born.
