“We share the joys of watching our children in their progress and conquest of problems. We look back at the times they were little and marvel at what they’ve become. And, best of all, we realize that what they have become has required the best efforts of us both working together.

“We look forward with faith, knowing that we can depend upon each other and our Heavenly Father to meet the challenges that lay ahead. And realize that it’s much easier doing it together than individually, by ourselves. That together we can have the courage to face the future. The paramount significance is that the sum total of our experiences and the knowledge and wisdom we have gained, together with our faith in God, and in each other, will go with us into the eternities as we become an eternal family. I believe that all of this is what constitutes that thing called LOVE.”
