A festival of faith. A gathering of hope. A time of spiritual growth and renewal.

Camp meetings hold a lot of tradition in the Seventh-day Adventist Church. This is when faithful followers of the Advent hope gather to worship, to share faith, to grow in their Bible understanding, and to find encouragement for living generously and sharing faithfully.

Right here in western Washington, camp meetings trace back to 1886 when a handful of Seattle area Sabbath keepers held their first camp meeting in this region. This annual time of encouragement continues today.

This might be your first time at Washington Adventist Camp Meeting, or an annual tradition in your family for the past 50 years or more.

Through your camp meeting experience, may you be inspired to live and share generously the hope and wholeness that Jesus offers us!

Do you struggle to explain your convictions about Sabbath or labor unions to your employer? Are you being asked to work on Sabbath? The Northwest Religious Liberty Association can help. Call Greg Hamilton and Rhonda Bolton at 360-857-7040.
