World Squash Day is just days away and the Squash Australia community encourages States and its Centres across the Nation to do something special for the day to promote the love of Squash across the community.

Using #whyilovesquash .. World Squash Day mastermind Alan Thatcher has urged the world Squash community for Squashies to flood social media with images and videos telling the world why they love Squash.

Centres that are open across Australia are encouraged to do something special to help boost the world-wide aim of attracting 1 million new Squash players to register across a 10-year period.

If you're a Centre in Australia that cannot open for the day, flood your digital platforms with photos and images of your members in their Squash gear and promoting their love of the game.

On Saturday, October 10.. when putting up a post, please be sure to tag Squash Australia and World Squash Day in any posts.
