“And so we prepare not to die, but to live. The thought of death should slip from our consciousness altogether; and when this great event of the soul takes place, it should be beautiful, sublime . . . a glorious experience. As the eagle, freed from its cage, soars to its native heights, so the soul, freed from the home of heavy flesh, will rise and return unto its Father’s house, naked and unafraid.”

Ernest Holmes, founder of Religious Science, wrote in the Science of Mind

Gratitudes: Trazia Wylie’s and Lauren James’ music accompanied by Angelo; Barbara Scott’s flowers; Deborah Perdue’s program and readings; Louis Molano, videographer; Paula Peterson and Kitchen Angels; and friends, out of town relatives and those on Zoom.
