Remember your goals. If you do not yet need to apply knowledge in correspondence with colleagues, then do not undertake to study examples of official letters. If you know that you will communicate mainly with Americans, study the differences in vocabulary and writing. The principle also works here: from simple to complex.

Action plan

Master the basic rules of spelling (English Spelling).

When learning a new word or phrase, immediately remember the pronunciation and spelling.

Note the difference between British and American English.

Gradually learn punctuation and written abbreviations.

Test sites from the list below and embed them in training.

The site provides an excellent opportunity to test written skills in English: after each lesson, you can leave comments with questions or talk about how you went through the lesson. Other participants and teachers of the project (native speakers) will be happy to talk with you.

I talked about other resource options in this article.

2 favicongrammarly

A resource that will correct your text and tell you what errors you have most often. You register and add grammarly to the browser. When you write text, it highlights controversial points and offers replacement options. In this case, you get an explanation of this option in terms of grammar and vocabulary.

You can check a huge range of texts: from resumes to personal emails. Most of the functions of the service are provided in the paid version of the program, but the free version serves as an excellent hint.

3 faviconThesaurus

An important tool for you if you are already composing and writing your own texts: stories, letters, notes, posts for a blog or social networks. Working with this service, you will find more ways to express your thoughts, for example, using synonyms. But, keep in mind that even words with a similar meaning are not always used in the same situation. Therefore, check yourself on this site if such a contentious moment arises.

The resource provides a dictionary, quotes, blogs, as well as applications and dictionary games for pumping the writing skill in English.

4 faviconitalki

On this platform you can study both independently and with a teacher. In the case of the first option use notes in your account, keep a mini diary. At the same time, comment on the posts of other users and gradually communicate with the site participants. Answer the questions of other language lovers and ask your own.

If you are studying with a teacher, then take a course of written assignments. At home, you will write short essays, and in the classroom, take them apart with the teacher. You can choose business English, business correspondence in Spanish, creative essays in Italian, preparation for international exams.
