My lifetime friend, partner, wife and confidant. Not many words are needed to define who you were because you was just an amazing woman of God. Who loved God, who believed God and trusted God with everything. The enormity of your spirit was pleasant, impactful and supernatural. What can I say to the woman who had taken a chance to become my wife? Wow, so many words come to mind (like courageous, brave and insane). What can I say to the woman who has given me her all mentally, emotionally, physically and spiritually? What can I say to the woman who has endure with me? Never losing sight of the promise of God and was always certain. What can I say to the woman who saw in me What I sometimes did not see in myself ? She was a woman who listened to my concerns applied her concern despite her own personal Concern. what can I say to the woman who had been my anchor in the storms of life? When in cold times only her loving spirit kept me warm. What can I say to the woman who was so beautiful in every dimension of her being? Her words of wisdom We're both soothing aspiring and electrifying. What do I say to the woman who has made it all worthwhile? Through the struggle the pain, the happiness and the tears. It has been a joy and honor been on this journey with her and my heart continues to smile. What do I say to the woman whose love was in every hug and kiss that I loved needed and wanted because it soothed my soul. I say to that woman of God, well done! FOREVER IN OUR HEARTS

Her STORY

Cassandra Anita Warren-Pinder affectionately known as Cassie, Boo-Boo and God mom was born on May 24, 1964. She departed this life on November 25, 2024 peacefully transition surrounded by her loved ones. She was educated in Lenoir County schools and graduated from Kinston High in 1982.

Once Cassandra became of age, her employment journey would begin with her starting her career with working as aid in the Nursing home in Kinston North Carolina. Later taking a position working for the Housing Authority in Kinston North Carolina where she enjoyed helping clients and coworkers. Her last time working in the work force was with the PNC Bank where she enjoyed helping the clients and coworkers.

Cassandra was led to the Lord by her late grandmother Estine Warren where they attended Heath Chapel Church of Kinston North Carolina, where she loved singing on the youth choir. Cassandra's life started to change once she started to attend the church and learn more about God and what the religion Christianity meant.

She would later make the decision to get saved by accepting the Lord Jesus Christ as her Lord and Savior. As she started to grow in her faith, she started to learn what the purpose of her life was. God started to show her the gifts he blessed her with and the desires she had in her heart.

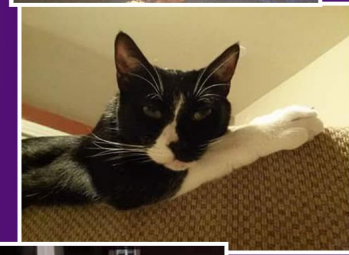

In 1995 she would briefly connect with her future husband Aaron by receiving a phone call that was meant for someone else. They would become friends from 1995 until 2022 in 2022 Cassandra was maturing in her relationship with the lord where she was seeking him concerning his will for her life. God told her to move to Philadelphia, Pa where she had to make the decision to choose God's will over man. In the year of 2003 Cassandra moved to Philadelphia, Pa where she became a part of the ministries she was led to serve with the gifts of Teaching, preaching, praying, serving and cooking for the people of God. Cassandra strongly believed in being responsible in how she lived her life for God.

Cassandra greatest desired was to serve the lord and have a family of her own. God had blessed her with the desire of her heart by reconnecting her with her now husband Aaron. They were reconnecting in 2006 where they talked for 1yr and 1/2 before seeing each other again until 2008 when they were married on May 4, 2008. No matter what they endured as a couple they both never believed in divorce. When they got committed on that day they stayed committed even until her death.

Cassandra leaves to cherish her memories: her husband Aaron Timothy Pinder; her mother Mary Louise Dixon; her siblings Mary Louise Dixon, the late Steven Warren Dixon Jr., Juanita Dixon and God Sister Sheila Koonce; a host of aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews and cousins. God has blessed her with a heart to love and care for her in-laws, the Pinder family and her stepchildren as well as her God given children Demika Cobb, Minister Kimyada M. Fisher-Nelson and Donnie Woods, grandchildren and great-grandchildren as well as friends and church family.
