For Today: The Story Behind Grace

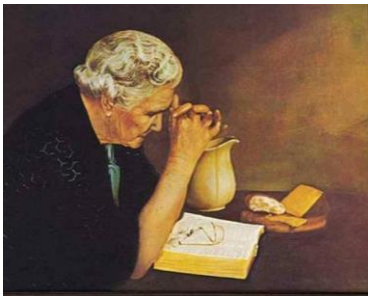

Do you recognize this piece of art? It is one of the most reproduced pictures of the twentieth century. Do you know the story behind it?

Painted by Rhoda Nyberg, this famous portrait is from a photograph taken in 1918 by her father, Eric Engstrom, a photographer from Bovey, Minnesota.

The photo was later painted in oils. It is titled "Grace."

Charles Wilden, a peddler, called on Engstrom, who was in the midst of preparing a portfolio of photos for the Minnesota Photo Association convention. Wilden agreed to be photographed. Engstrom arranged the table and asked Wilden to bow in prayer. Engstrom later said, "I wanted to take a picture that would show people that even though they had to do without many things because of the war, they still had much to be thankful for." Rhoda painted numerous paintings from the original photo.

This photo, called "Gratitude," was taken in the 1960s by Jack Garren, who owned a Christian bookstore in Centralia, Illinois. The subject is Mrs. Myrtle Copple. The photo was designed to complement "Grace." The two, separated by more than 40 years, are often packaged together: "Grace and Gratitude"
