

For My Loved Ones

Don't cry for me
'Cause I've gone
to a better place.
Try not to cry for me
'Cause I've seen
The Savior's face.
Don't cry for me,
I'm home, I'm free.
Try not to cry for me
Just hold on to
Our memories.
Celebrate my life
Celebrate the years
Celebrate our family
And wipe each other's tears.
Celebrate the laughter
Celebrate the fun
One day God will wipe away your tears
And sorrow will be gone.
Remember my smile,
and the things
we used to do
How you were always
there for me,
and how much
I love you

Obituary

For God to show his strength in your life
1 Corinthians 12:9

Mrs. Deadra Jackson-Lewis, the daughter of Mr. David Jackson and Mrs. Athea Snipes was born in Savannah, Georgia on June 14, 1969. On Sunday morning, August 27, 2023, after battling with Multiple Sclerosis, Deadra heard the call of the Lord to enter into eternal rest.

Deadra was educated in her early years at Ramah Academy. She received her formal education at Windsor High School and graduated from Jenkins High School in Savannah, Georgia. She began her higher education at Savannah Technical College where she earned a certification as a Microcomputer Specialist. She continued her higher education at Savannah State University and Walden University, where she received a Bachelor of Arts in Business Management.

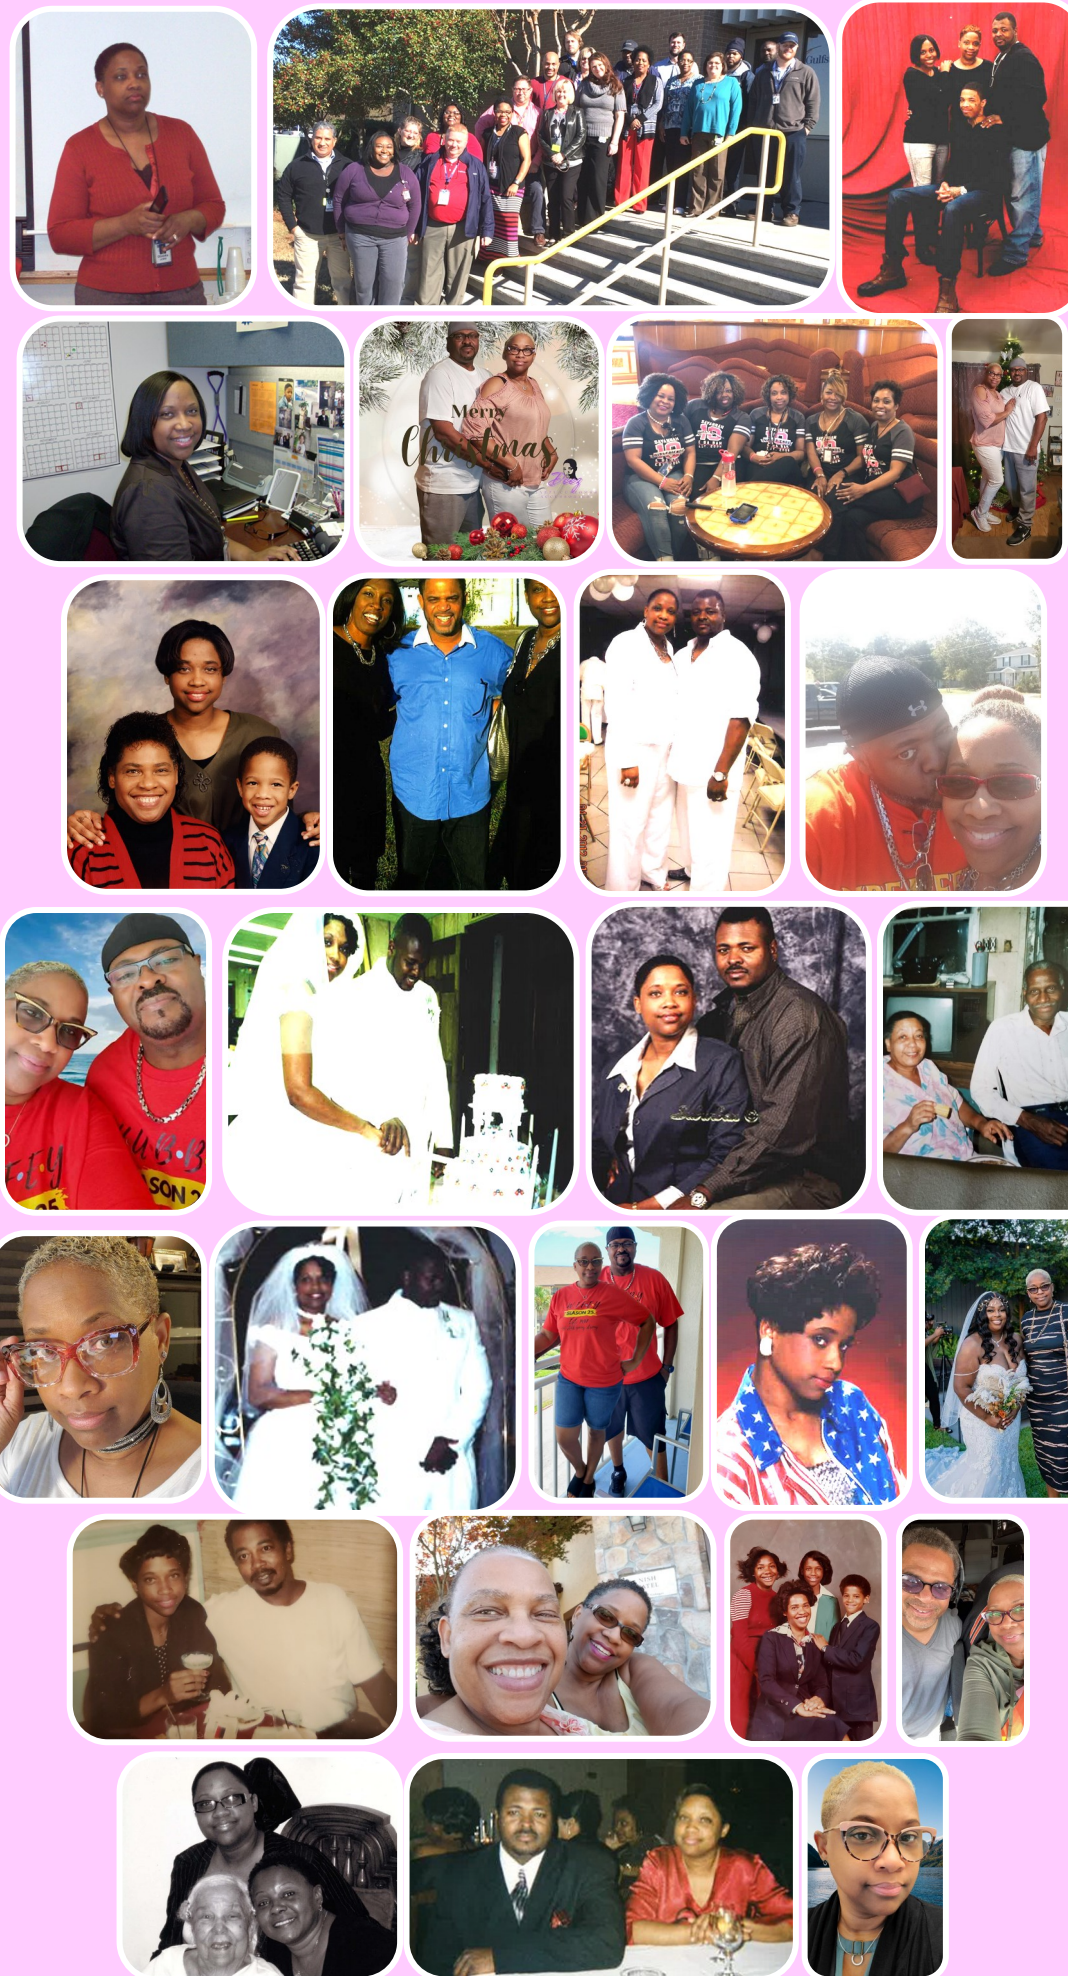

At an early age, Deadra joined the West Broad Street Seventh Day Adventist Church where she served as a faithful member until her passing.

In 1995, Deadra met the love of her life, Charles Lewis. On July 12, 1997, they were joined together in holy matrimony. This union was blessed with one son and two daughters.

Deadra was employed with Gulfstream Aerospace Corporation for 16 years where she had a spirit of excellence. Her career began as an Administrative Associate for the Material Logistics Team. In recognition of her exceptional talents and contributions as a high performer, she received several promotions as a Material Systems Analyst and most recently a Senior Technical Data Associate.

In March of 2017, Deadra launched entrepreneurial endeavors as an independent consultant for Paparazzi Jewelry. Her business success continued with the start of two e-commerce businesses, Deez Jazzi Custom & Accessories in January 2019. Deadra was a visionary with a commitment to succeed, which allowed her to grow a thriving customer base across the country.

She leaves the following to cherish her memory and everlasting love: her devoted husband, Charles Lewis; her son, Dashaun Lewis; her devoted daughters, Amber Henley-Moore, and Aleeah Wilson; three grandchildren; her mother, Athea Snipes; her father, David Jackson (Demetric); three sisters, Thea Jackson, Fajola Jackson, and Malika Jackson Jeanty (Jean Bernard); two brothers, Barnett Williams, and David Jackson; two step-sisters, Kimberly Banks McKeever (Felicia) and Brandy L. White (Artis); her mother-in-law, Annie Mae Lawrence; sisters-in-law, Patrice Coachman (John), and Dellerice Grant; and brothers-in-law, Johnny Lawrence and Shanga Lawrence; and a host of aunts, uncles, cousins, nieces, nephews, other relatives and friends.
