

Johnny loved his independence, and loved helping people, especially his family. Our parents were at the top of the list. One time, he could see that mom wanted a better way to cook, so he bought an electric range at Western Auto to replace the wood cook stove she had used for so many years. He also took our parents on many trips, especially to see family out of state. Johnny also loved animals, especially dogs. His two schnauzers meant so much to him. He also helped support many organizations for the betterment of pets and wildlife.

Yes, Johnny was the “Best Brother Ever” and also the “Best Son Ever”. He was so helpful to many of us, both family and friends. There were many incidents that he was involved at the Collinsville neighborhood when the John and Lenora Buchfink family was young. His abilities were endless. He was like an extension of mom and dad to help get the younger kids organized, cleaned-up, and to bed on time. Although, he was sometimes demanding of the kids to do it right, he was also sensitive, giving “older brother” directions, which sounded like orders at the time, to the younger ones. Being an older brother, Johnny was bigger and knew how to “throw his weight around” to get the task done. I’m sure his presence was appreciated many times by mom and dad, because they were “stretched pretty thin” at times. Having 11 children very close in age, and probably 5 to 7 in the house at one time, it was impossible for them to watch all the kids at one time and do all the things that should be done with their upbringing. Johnny did that willingly and his influence was felt by all of us. Thank God for providing him to mom and dad as an older brother to our family. Johnny also learned domestic responsibilities at an early age. Many times, he assisted mom with the younger ones, usually bathing and general house cleaning. Many times, he was in charge as a lifeguard when the kids swam in local ponds, creeks, coal pits and even in the Caney River. He was also a security officer watching out for many dangers, I’m sure, and even being compassionate helping with scrapes, cuts, and falls. Those times weren’t all structured, rigid, and organized. We had a lot of good times too. There were some delightful sightseeing vacations, to Arkansas, Kansas and Western Oklahoma and trips to visit distant family. These were usually planned and financed by Johnny for the benefit of mom and dad and the younger kids. Anyway, what a great life Johnny had in service to God, and his family. We will miss him greatly here on earth, but he’s on to another life in the hereafter with his lord and other generations of his family and friends that have gone before us.
