The following guidelines are designed to encourage families to send students to the Tri-City Seventh-day Adventist School. (The program includes families with or without a Seventh-day Adventist background.)

1. Students from a family whose children have not previously attended a Seventh-day Adventist School are eligible for a 25% tuition discount for each student, during the year when their first student attends Tri-City Seventh-day Adventist School.

2. Students from a family that attend Tri-City Seventh-day Adventist School during the school year following the first year of participation in the incentive program are eligible for a 15% tuition discount. The second year for eligibility must immediately follow the first year of the family's participation in the incentive program.
3. The Tri-City SDA School Board is authorized to approve eligibility for the incentive program under special circumstances or situations not specifically covered by the above guidelines.

Payment in Advance

A full or half year's tuition paid in advance will be discounted 2%.

Nonpayment of Tuition

There is a late payment fee of $10 for payments made after the 20th of each month.

When a student's tuition balance exceeds the equivalent of two month's tuition, a student will not be able to attend beginning the day after the statement due date unless suitable arrangements have been made with the school board. The school will also notify the pastor of the church involved.

Any student account that is in arrears when school starts must pay one month's tuition before the student can enroll, and then continue to pay each month in advance for the student to remain in school. (Payments are due by the first day of each month.) Advance payments are required for the student to continue to attend, until the account balance is paid in full.

Retention of Records

Transcripts will not be issued until the school bill is paid in full. Special consideration by the Tri-City SDA School Board can be requested for unusual circumstances.
