

I love a road that twists and turns,
A road that threads about.
Down the Valleys and up the hills,
Weaving in and out.
A road that holds some new surprise
With each and every day.
A road with unexpected concerns,
All along the way.
Life is a road of constant change
Where it is hard to guess,
What is waiting around the corner,
Pain or happiness.
Frowning mountains dark with clouds
On meadows of delight,
Shadows falling 'round the path,
On sunshine warm and bright.
Need I fear what might be waiting
'round the bend?
Knowing that the love of God
Goes with me to the end.
And though the twilight deepens
As the sunset way I roar,
The last turn is the best of all
Because it takes me home.
