

Speak Your Love

There are many things to fear in this life but I have found that there is one to be feared above all the things you failed to say.

Always speak what is in your heart always speak to those you love as though that sentence may be the last one you utter.
Because if it is you will play those words over and over and ache with every fibre of your being to replace them with better to replace them with love.

To tell that person how magical wondrous and joyous they were.
Never fall into the trap of believing you have time to speak your love time is not something we can rely on.

every day
speak your love
come what may.
