

The saying goes that the stars come out at night, as if they go somewhere during the day. The truth is that they are always there, we just can't see them because of the distraction that the daylight causes.

We might think that our loved ones are gone after they die, but they are like the stars, they are always watching over us, we just can't see them because of the distractions that our eyes see. But when we close our eyes and look with our hearts, we can see them quietly watching over us.

IN OUR hearts
