Parent Tip

Whether your child is on the school yearbook committee or dance team, he/she can practice leadership skills that will help her in school and on the job. Here's how.

Be assertive. Encourage your child to speak up and use a confident tone. If he/she shows that she feels good about her ideas, others are more likely to listen.

Aim to inspire. Good leaders make others eager to do their best. Tell your child to pay attention to others' talents and efforts so he/she can give sincere compliments.

("Your rhythm is really keeping us on tempo!")
