The following questions are for admission and, if admitted, program planning purposes only. CHANGE School of Evangelism extends an offer of admission to qualified applicants without regard to race, national or ethnic origin, colour, religion, gender, age, or disability.

While the Alberta Conference of the Seventh-day Adventist church sponsors and financially underwrites CHANGE and while the majority of its students are Seventh-day Adventists, CHANGE requires no specific religious affiliation for admission. Subject to available space, CHANGE extends an offer of admission to persons of other or no religious persuasion who meet its admission standards and who express their willingness to respect its religious, social, and cultural characteristics; however, permission to attend CHANGE may be withdrawn if a student does not wish to cooperate with its policies, or if a student's presence becomes detrimental to the mission and functioning of CHANGE.

The Admissions Officer, in consultation with the Admissions Committee, reviews all applications and makes decisions regarding admission to CHANGE. Students who want information regarding admission may inquire via one of the following methods:
