Bankgirot takes next step in streamlining operations

Bankgirot continues to meet increasing customer demands in the payment market. To ensure, secure and efficient payment services in the future, Bankgirot initiates a new partnership and outsources IT operations to EVRY.

- We have a strong business with new volume records. But it's not enough. Additional quality assurance and efficiency of Bankgirot's payment platforms is a natural step to meet market demands, today and tomorrow, says Bankgirot CEO Jeanette Jäger.

Bankgirot and EVRY have today launched a partnership in which EVRY undertakes to provide the operation and management of Bankgirot's payment platforms. The outsourcing includes the operation of platforms and about 30 employees. The agreement has a seven-year duration.

- We're happy that Bankgirot has shown us the great trust that this agreement entails. Together, we are now building a dynamic delivery organization, modernizing the technical infrastructure and continuing to ensure efficient and secure payment services such as Bankgirot has made for almost 60 years, says EVRY CEO Per Hove.

Bankgirot processes around six million transaction daily in Sweden worth SEK 68 billion. The company has previously developed many successful financial services such as Autogiro, e-invoice and Real-Time Payments (BIR) that enable Swish.

- With EVRY, we get a strong partner with deep technical and commercial insight that will help us provide quality and efficiency, says Bankgirot CEO Jeanette Jäger.
