Key Concept for Spiritual Growth

God wants His people to share with the world the truth of His kingdom. The question that often confronts us in fulfilling that mandate concerns the methods we should use to communicate that truth. In the book of Daniel, we learn that the truth is related to the form that channels it. The literary forms of a given book often express its profoundest and richest message. Daniel himself embodied this principle. His personal relationship with people around him, the way he approached them, the way he ate and drank, even the way he presented himself, was not dissociated from the spiritual message he carried.

Trust God

On the Other Side of Suffering

Joseph can be our hero when it comes to someone who experienced tragic, unjust treatment and handled it exactly the way God wants us to. When we are willing to forgive those who have hurt us, we are actually doing ourselves a favor.

Now therefore, do not be afraid. I will provide for and support you and your little ones. And he comforted them (imparting cheer, hope, strength) and spoke to their hearts (kindly). Genesis 50:21AMPC

God’s promises to use what we go through to make us stronger and better than we were before. But this all hinges on whether or not we are willing to put our total trust in God concerning the painful things we encounter in life.

WE CANNOT GIVE AWAY WHAT WE DO NOT HAVE. First we must receive from God, and then what He has given us can flow through us to others. When people come to us with their problems, most of the time they already know that we cannot solve them. What they really want is understanding, comfort, and compassion. On the other side of suffering, we can become softer, more tender, gentler and more compassionate and empathetic. These qualities are some of what we admire in our Lord and they qualify us to minister on His behalf.

We have to “go through” to “get through.”
